The West Side says that the Free Traders of the Pacific coast are, without a doubt, the most inconsistent set of men in the universe They cannot fail to see that, to the most of our domestic manufacturers, free trade would be certain ruin, and that in the remainder, the price of labor have to depreciate in order to enable our manufacturers to compete successfully with the cheap labor of the old world

From the Eugene Guard We learn that a misunderstanding occurred between some of the contractors on the railroad and the boarding house men On Thursday morning they refused to move their tents, unless the contractors would be responsible for the board of the hands, claiming that they had lost money by bummers who work awhile and then loaf long enough to eat out twice the amount due them

POLITICAL NOTES

MONDAY MORNING JULY 17 1871

Mr Sylvester C Simpson's Oration

In the Corvallis Gazette of the 8th instant, we find a copy of the Oration delivered by this gentleman at Corvallis on the Fourth. The Oration is well composed and for a Fourth of July one is entitled to the rare credit of being and attempting to be original. After glorifying the anniversary and the nation that is said to have been born of it without stint and in first rate style the Orator proceeds to forecast the dangers which lie or seem to lie in our future. He says

> But though our country has thus made her way through countless trials and vicissitudes to the front rank among the great Powers we are not to imagine that her perils are over and that she is to march on henceforth without hindrance or molestation. The past indeed is secure, but as we look wistfully up the slope of the future oh! what difficulties and dangers throng the way! Indeed the high mission and destiny of our government make it necessary that it should encounter all possible perils. As it was essential that the Divine Man who came into the world to be the perfect exemplar and model after which all human life was to be fashioned, should be "acquainted with grief," and "should be tempted in all points like as we are" so it is needful that our country, which we fondly believe to be the great pattern that the free republics of the coming time are to follow should be subjected to all the possible trials and tests and dangers incident to the existence of a nation. The fact that this is the grand Model Government of history furnishes an explanation of the numberless vicissitudes through which it has already passed, and is at the same time a prophecy of the countless perils that are to assail it hereafter. The dangers of the future are, however, to be of a somewhat different character from those of the past. The latter were the perils of her weakness, and the former are to be the perils of her strength

These dangers our orator says, are principally two. First, the lust of empire, and of sacrificing to that end the noble purpose for which our government was founded. And second, the enormous concentration of wealth and power in the hands of great corporations, exercising, as does and will, such corrupting, controlling influence in our popular elections and in our State and national legislation. Upon this latter question we quote from the oration as follows

> But when money has such power in a Republic there is danger, imminent, fearful danger, to its institutions. The great enterprises, which concentrated capital is thus carrying on in our midst, are among the most important subjects of legislation. This of course renders it extremely advantageous to those corporations, which have such enterprises in charge, that this legislation should be friendly. Thus, by an obvious and easy route, the Titanic energies, which accomplish such wonders in the material world, find their way into the domain of politics and display themselves with marked effect at the ballot box and in the halls of legislation. The most superficial observer, can therefore see that political corruption in a greater or less degree is almost a necessary result of these vast aggregations of capital employed in such important enterprises.
>
> Nor are we left altogether to conjecture on this subject, for, as a matter of fact, we see every where a degree of corruption in our politics hitherto unknown. Now, I would not be understood to say that this increase of corruption is any evidence of degeneracy in the people, or any proof that we are less virtuous, or less jealous of our liberties than our fathers were. The fact is, this is a new danger, and one which our fathers were never called upon to meet. The Congresses of our early history were not thronged by the powerful paid agents and influential lobbies which besiege them in this day—not because Congressmen were any more virtuous than they are now, but because there was nobody to pay the lobbies then and there were no interests requiring their services. This lobby is essentially a creature of the age of stock companies and railroads. If [illegible] had been able to build the great Pacific Railroad I have no doubt that the influence of a "Railroad Ring" would have been felt in Congress, "button holeing" and buying members quite as successfully as they are now bribed and bought now.
> This is emphatically a danger of our own time—our chief danger—and it must be met with weapons of our own devising. The great remedy for this, in my judgment, is popular education. We cannot afford to cripple capital, or [illegible] down the Titanic laborers, that are working such wonders in the land, by unfriendly legislation—we need their services to develop the grand material possibilities of our country. The people must be educated to meet and overcome the corrupting influences of aggregated wealth upon our politics. After all, knowledge is the helper of virtue. Give men to know the right and the chances of their doing it are increased. The school house and the prison are the antipodes of each other, as the one is built up the other decays. Popular education then is the true antidote for political corruption as well as for every other vice. Send the school master to meet the giver of bribes at the polls, and the lobbyist in the halls of legislation.

We take leave to question the sufficiency of the popular specific, unless the word 'education' is used in a broader than the popular sense. Simple intelligence or what is called 'smartness' is not virtue, nor is it any security against "the corrupting influences of aggregated wealth upon our politics." On the contrary, it is the common observation in the United States that the increase of corruption in politics and the spread of popular education go hand in hand. Whether the one is the cause of the other or whether it is a mere coincidence, we do not stop to inquire. We state the fact. Education in the most limited sense or degree tends to diminish the commission of the grosser kind of crimes which rest in brute force and violence. But mere intellectual and physical education increases men's wants and ambition and the surest and readiest means of gratifying these, at this day lies in the possession and use of money. So it is that the merely intellectually educated man other things being equal, is more likely to yield to "the corrupting influences of aggregated wealth in politics" than the simple and unlearned rustic. There is no doubt but that popular intelligence tends to promote public good, where that consists with private interest, but where it does not, the reverse seems to be true. As has been said intelligence is not virtue, and without virtue, intelligence is quite as likely to promote corruption in "our politics" as otherwise.

The following apostrophe to the Constitution of the United States and to constitutional government, is well worth reading. The simile of the 'lofty dikes' and historic stones is a striking one and eloquently told. The italics are ours.

> Oh what a strong shelter the Constitution of our fathers has proven to be in the fierce vicissitudes of our national life! There are parts of Holland which lie below the level of the sea and which indeed have been reclaimed from it. Around those parts, great lofty dikes have been erected at heavy cost and with long labor to keep out the destroying waves. And under the shelter of those massive walls which thus stand between them and the hungry sea a great and prosperous people have made their homes. Those dikes are watched and guarded with constant vigilance by the inhabitants, for if they should burst—as they have done once or twice already in history—the leaping waves would cover the land with death and desolation. And thus our land is girdled by the grand masonry of the Constitution, and protected from the sea of anarchy. To frame that massive wall our fathers went back into the past and dug from the quarry of history stones, which had been formed by the slow deposits of centuries of experience and which had been cemented by the blood of all the martyrs of liberty in the ages gone before. Of such material was that mighty bulwark constructed and every passing hour, as the hungry waves beat madly but vainly against it, proves the excellence of its masonry! And oh! if the spirits of the departed take any interest in worldly things it seems to me that America's patriot dead must be hovering protectingly near that grand wall! Washington and Adams and Jefferson and Jackson and Webster and Clay clad in ghostly armor are keeping perpetual watch and ward beside it, while legions of spirits of those who, in the years gone by have spoken for it, and prayed for it and thought for it and died for it are encamped round about it! Oh may that ghostly guard forever stand, an invisible [illegible] this barrier, between that glorious fabric and those who would do it hurt! So long as our country is girt about by that mighty wall, we are safe from the wild waves of anarchy, but if ever, in any mad hour we shall with sacrilegious hands dash down that protecting bulwark, the awful sea will sweep in and overwhelm us. Let the horrible excesses recently enacted by the French Commune admonish us that unbridled Democracy is as dangerous as monarchy! In the blackened walls and ruined splendor of Paris let us behold a new proof of the value of constitutional government. Let us not flatter ourselves that we are an exceptionable people. The horrors perpetrated in other lands in the abuse of Liberty would be possible here under like conditions. Indeed there is nothing but our Constitution and our common schools between us and the awful excesses of the French revolution and the Parisian Commune

But we fear that if there had been nothing between us and the awful excesses of the French revolution and the Parisian Commune but our Constitution and our common schools, the sea of anarchy and licentiousness would have long since swept away our dykes and deluged our land in blood and vice. Our security lies farther back. It is in the blood. We are not Celts or Gauls. In the main we are descended from and inherit the deep moral sense political wisdom and capacity for representative self government which has ever distinguished the race from whose deposits of experience from Hastings to Waterloo from Runnymede to the Convention Parliament the men of 1776 quarried the historic stones with which they reared the fair fabric of our Constitution.

But now that we have used the metaphor in the above extract concerning the building of the wall of the Constitution we cannot refrain from paying it this passing tribute. Rhetorically it is beautiful and sublime,—historically it is true.

We close our quotations with the following picturesque paragraph concerning the present and future of our own portion of the Republic.

> In that future too we of this North west coast are destined to play an important part. Our nation has in fact but just discovered this portion of her empire. Searching for room for the vast population of her future, she stretched out her iron arm across desert and wilderness and mountain, and lo! her hand touched the garden spot of all her fair dominion. She has shouted the glorious tidings to her children in the East and now they are coming "to spy out the land." In the most propitious time in our history, when our valleys are carpeted with the green promise of an abundant harvest the eyes of our brothers beyond the mountains have fallen upon our fair State. We have for years been guarding an inhabited empire here, pacing our lonely six hundred and forty acre beats and waiting for population! But now if we listen we may hear the tramp, tramp tramp of the advancing host!

It will be noticed that the orator classes Jefferson with Washington and other deceased patriots and statesmen who, "clad in ghostly armor are keeping perpetual watch and ward" over the wall of the Constitution, as the political dyke which alone keeps us from being swallowed up by "the hungry waves" of the sea of anarchy. If this be true, and we hope it is we can only say that Jefferson in the spirit is very different from Jefferson in the flesh. In the latter case he was practically the author of the anarchical resolutions 1798-9, by means of which the first great breach was made in this wall—a breach which made the National existence a serious doubt for sixty years, and at last cost the country a great war, with the loss of many lives and much treasure to restore.

It is truly an excellent thing that the subjugation of the rioters in New York was accomplished by the State authorities and the State military forces, instead of by the Federal troops. Suppose that in the enforcement of the laws by the United States authorities against the law-breaking ballot-repeating population of that city, such slaughter had occurred—how would the Democratic press have rung with exclamations about "military butchery," "bloody despotism," etc, etc. But as it is they are completely disarmed and silenced. The Herald for instance, hasn't a word to say. Its editor hasn't yet learned of the riot and the slaughter. But if this had been done by the Federal troops how prompt he would have been to denounce it as a "criminal massacre"! While we are upon this subject and recall to mind the readiness and inveteracy of Democratic denunciations of the National Administration for using the military, let us suggest that the Democratic Governors of California and New York have shown themselves a little ahead of anything yet attempted in this line by that "military despot," U S Grant.

The Herald, in an editorial paragraph on French affairs, incidentally gives expression to an opinion on the "woman question" which must be accepted as at once luminous and conclusive. "Women," says our contemporary, with much gravity and wisdom, "are good things in their place." "Mr Speaker," said a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, "Mr Speaker, I know wimmen. I say it with no disrespect. They're a useful set but with the best of em you may have trouble!" We can't see that much more remains to be said on the "woman question."

The Citizen a prominent Democratic weekly of New York City and many other Democratic organs in different parts of the country, are furious in their denunciations of Jeff Davis because he doesn't "depart" to their satisfaction. In their fury they demand that he be immediately seized and hanged. As the St. Louis Democrat remarks, it is plain that if he makes but one more speech in behalf of the principles which the Democracy have always held up to a very recent date his life will depend upon Republican protection from Democratic departurcism.

Says the St Louis Republican (Democratic): One of the resolutions adopted by the Iowa Democratic State Convention demanded the trial and punishment of those who have stolen the taxes paid by the people. So say we all, and for a place to begin, we would suggest the corporation of the city of New York. The fifty two millions added to the debt of that city during the past two years, by the "Tammany Ring" call aloud for the enforcement of the above Democratic resolve.

The Maine Democracy have adopted the New Departure platform. They propose to "bury out of sight all dead issues" and to address themselves to the vital questions and interests of the hour. That is to say they propose to bury the dead horse and ride the live one. There is a little difficulty in the way. The live horse belongs to the Republican party and has scruples about traveling nowhere on a dark road.

The impressive lesson administered to the roughs and law-breakers of New York has produced a salutary result. The dispatches say that the city has not been so free from disorder for twenty years.

The Doctrine of Toleration

Another remark or two on the discussion raised by the New York riot may be proper before we leave the subject. We offer them in reply to a statement in Sunday's Bulletin. That statement is as follows.

> The Orangemen are alien residents and not citizens, and while the Constitution and laws of the United States assure rights to citizens, to alien residents are accorded, for obvious reasons, nothing beyond privileges

We do not understand that Orangemen are all aliens. But if they are, it is as we view it, nothing to the purpose. The distinction between rights and privileges is, we think too finely drawn to be of any practical value. Granting that Orangemen are aliens and are entitled to nothing beyond privileges in this country, suppose we call this matter of joining in a peaceful procession without molesting others a "privilege." That would meet the case quite as well as to call it a right. Mere terms are immaterial.

The Governor of New Jersey stated the principle involved, in a manner from which there can be no appeal. In his proclamation he said that the Constitution guarantees the right of the people to peacefully assemble together. Hence he warned all persons against any attempt to interrupt any portion of the people in its exercise. This is a first principle of freedom in our country. It is only necessary to recur to it to close the whole case now before us. The right of the Orangemen to celebrate the victory at Boyne water is just as good as the right of Catholics to celebrate the Pope's jubilee, or as the right of Germans to celebrate their achievements in the recent war. And if there are classes among us who cannot understand, or who wilfully ignore, our tolerant principles of government, they must take the consequence of their violation of them.

The Caucasian, a Democratic paper of Missouri, publishes an article on the death of Vallandigham, which the Eugene (Oregon) Guard copies. The article closes thus: "His death is a fitting commentary upon a movement which can only result in the suicide of Democracy—a monstrous attempt to show a whole party how it is possible to kill itself without waiting to be slain by its foes."

According to that doughty warrior, General Napoleon Bonaparte Forrest, there are no Ku Klux Klans in the South that he knows of, but he acknowledges that he is a member of a secret body of intimidators called the White Camelias. It seems to us that a White Camelia by any other name—Ku Klux for instance—would smell as sweet.

Will Democratic editors who have been denouncing "bayonet government," and talking about "gleams of steel in the background," favor their readers with some observations on the Democratic way of doing it, as exemplified in the conduct of Governor Hoffman of New York, and Gov Haight of California?

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1871.

CITY.

CONFLICT IN DOMESTIC JURISDICTION.—Nicholas Gregovich was divorced from his wife Mary Ann, in a California Court, and awarded the custody of their child Josephine, by the Court. The woman afterward kidnapped the child, as the papers in his possession show, and cleared out for this city last April. On the 21st day of this month Judge Sawyer issued a warrant for her arrest, and ever since then Gregovich has been [illegible] for his divorced wife in order to get possession of the child which has been awarded him. On Saturday his search was crowned with success in this city. He found the mother and child here in Portland, and at once undertook to gain possession of the child; but he proceeded contrary to law, was arrested for disorderly conduct, and when before the Police Judge and fined on two counts—for disorderly conduct and for carrying a concealed weapon. He subsequently procured a writ of habeas corpus, made returnable before Judge Upton this morning, when the wife will be called upon to show why she detains the child.

RESERVATION INDIANS.—We are pleased to bear testimony to the fact that there is a difference between Indians. The article with which we are wont to come in contact in this city is a [illegible], most decidedly. A number of Indians from the Siletz reservation, however, have been in the city for the last week or two in attendance upon the grand jury and the U. S. District Court, and have behaved themselves about as well as the average of Caucasian gentlemen, and a good deal better than many of the latter sort of bipeds we could mention. It is the universal testimony that the conduct of these Indians since they came here, has won for them a distinction among the Los of the country, which speaks well not only for them but for the managers of the reservation.

WATER SUPPLY.—We inadvertently omitted to state in our issue of Saturday that the Committee on Fire and Water held a meeting on Friday evening at the Council Chamber on the subject of water supply. The Committee, after some deliberation upon the matter in hand, appointed a sub-committee of three citizens—Messrs. P. C. Schuyler, James O'Meara and Lloyd Brooke—to investigate and report upon the best system of water works for supplying this city with water. The Committee then adjourned to meet at the call of the Chairman. It is intended to make a very full investigation and endeavor to ascertain what plan or system is best adapted to the wants of the city and best proportioned to its means.

DISREGARD OF DECENCY.—We have heard several complaints of late that boys, and even men, [illegible] recently guilty of bathing along the city front without being clad in decent bathing garments. On Friday a number of boys, old enough to know better and to have some sense of shame, [illegible] up in a nude condition on the logs near the [illegible] while a steamer with numerous lady [illegible] went by. We are glad to notice that two or three parties were arrested on Saturday for the offense of bathing in the river within the city limits, and hope that it may serve as a warning to other offenders.

FOUND GUILTY.—Last week Squire Johnson and J. Smith were tried in the United States District Court and convicted, upon a charge of selling liquor to Indians in Yamhill county last [illegible]. J. L. Cummings was tried and convicted upon a charge of obstructing the carriage of the United States mails. The obstruction occurred [illegible] The Dalles and Canyon City, at a bridge where toll was demanded, and the coach was not allowed to proceed until the sum of $50 was paid by the driver. These parties will each be sentenced [illegible].

VESSELS FOR PORTLAND.—On the 7th inst. the following vessels were loading at San Francisco for Portland: The brig Orient, Captain Nickels, to sail July 15th; bark Webfoot, Captain Gage; bark Whistler, Captain Simpson, to sail July [illegible]; bark Almatia, Captain Richardson, to sail July 30th.

SEVERELY HURT.—On Saturday a man employed on the Mountain Park, in [illegible] log off the [illegible], was badly injured by being caught [illegible] two logs on a sidehill, one of them [illegible] and the other rolling. His shoulder was broken and one of his arms was badly bruised.

PRISONERS FOR THE PENITENTIARY.—The prisoners, Ward and Wilson, convicted of murder in the second degree, the former sentenced, and the latter to be sentenced this morning, to imprisonment for life in the Penitentiary, will be taken to Salem this afternoon by Sheriff Bills.

LARCENY AT OREGON CITY.—An officer from [illegible] City came down Saturday and procured the arrest of a man named John Wilson, on a charge of larceny. He is accused of having stolen $45 coin. He was taken back to Oregon City on the Saturday afternoon train.

WORK ON THE WEST SIDE.—The work upon [illegible] bridge No. 3, Oregon Central Railroad, is about finished, and a portion of the builders will, to-day, be transferred to bridge No. 4. These bridges are each made ready for the track before the mechanics leave them.

FOR TILLAMOOK.—The schooner Mila Bond, Capt. Cerno, will sail for Tillamook early this week. She has had a cabin built on her since she arrived here, and now she will furnish comfortable accommodations for several passengers.

GOING NORTH.—We understand that M'lle Jeal [illegible]'s circus is going to Puget Sound via Monticello, where it will perform this evening. The company played to full houses during its stay in the city.

CHINESE GONE TO THE FRONT.—We learn that a large number of Chinamen went to the front on the O. and C. Railroad on Saturday, to work on the grading of the track beyond Eugene City.

EXCURSIONS.—Both the railroad and steamer Vancouver had full loads of passengers yesterday, and we learn from participants that the day went off pleasantly with both parties.

FILLING UP.—We learn that both the Washington and Emmet Guards have recently received numerous accessions to their rolls of members.

SOCIETY MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the society of Mexican Veterans will be held at the Court-house this evening.

TO MEET.—The Circuit Court, which was not [illegible] on Saturday, and the County Court, will meet to-day.

PERSONAL.

Milton Evans and wife, of Walla Walla, passed east from Ogden on Saturday.

The City Pound-keeper gives notice, by writing placed at the post-office, that he has "takin up" "One Read and White hefer," and "One [illegible] hefer." Persons who have lost any stock answering to this extraordinary description will please take notice.

Mr. David Mitchell, lately from Aberdeen, [illegible], a practical farmer, has purchased a farm of 429 acres adjoining Dayton, Yamhill county. He paid $3,000, including stock and implements. He has several sons, three of whom come with him and three are yet in Scotland who will come to Oregon this fall. Mr. Mitchell was for thirty two years a tenant of the Earl of Fife. This family was attracted to Oregon by a letter published in a Scottish paper by Mr. O. S. Phelps of this city.

The San Francisco Alta says: "All the journalistic dinners in San Francisco are going to Oregon to run the press of that State." We remember that a year ago one came from the Alta office, but after four weeks experience in Oregon broke down and went back to San Francisco. We hear he got his old situation on the Alta again.

Judge Orange Jacobs, of Washington Territory, who has just been on a trip to the East, is in this city and will start this morning for Seattle. Judge Jacobs has become a permanent resident of Washington Territory, and thinks he will never leave there. Which we regret very much, since we don't like to contribute our best citizens to our neighbors.

THE COURTS.

Saturday, July 15, 1871.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—United States vs J. L. Cummings, indicted for obstructing the U. S. mails; trial concluded, and verdict of jury, "guilty."

SEASIDE ITEMS.

The subjoined items come to us from our correspondent, under date, Astoria, July 14:

On Wednesday last the military authorities at Cape Disappointment fired off the huge 15-inch gun situated on the point of the Cape, about fifty feet from the lighthouse. The charge consisted of a shell and 45 pounds of powder. The concussion was so great that it broke eleven plates of glass in the large glass globe (or house) surrounding the great lamp in the lighthouse. The glass is over one-third of an inch in thickness and of the best material. It also crushed to atoms the house surrounding the great fog bell at the base of the lighthouse.

The steamer U. S. Grant took a large party of pleasure seekers to Young's river falls yesterday, and to-day the steamer Varuna took a party to Cape Disappointment, among whom was Mrs. Victor, who is collecting materials for her new book.

The United States surveying schooner Humboldt is fitting up for a voyage to Alaska, under recent orders from the department having control of such affairs.

The bark Live Yankee is at Cementville, loading with lumber for San Francisco, and will be ready for sea in a few days.

Ben Holladay has gone to the Summer House, where he had engaged a number of rooms.

A light shower of rain fell here this morning. Weather, cool and pleasant.

Gen. French, of the Second U. S. Artillery, returned to-day from Fort Stevens and Cape Disappointment, where he had been on an inspecting tour.

Ben Holladay is soon going to build a large wharf and warehouse at this place for the accommodation of his steamships.

The Dixie Thompson brought down this evening a large number of health and pleasure seekers. They are scattering out in all directions, hunting the desirable points.

The walls of the Custom House are nearly completed, and the building presents quite a substantial and imposing appearance; but the old fogy architect has planned the windows so small, that they would seem to have been designed for the dark ages.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE CHEMEKETA HOUSE, SALEM.—In our columns to-day will be found the "new ad." of the above house. Having stopped at this excellent hotel we can heartily recommend it to all who desire to stop at Salem during the summer months or to those who can spend but a day. R. P. Earhart, Esq., the proprietor, is one of the most clever men in the business, and those who "fall into his hands" will never regret the time spent with him.

THE "MAISON DOREE."—Messrs. Voss & Carrere have nearly completed the various departments in their new restaurant on the northwest corner of Pine and First streets. Rooms have been elegantly arranged on the second floor for private parties, and the main saloon on the first floor will compare favorably with similar institutions in San Francisco and the East. They have received a lot of frogs and terrapins, which will be served in excellent styles, with other luxuries, on the day of the opening this week, and every day thereafter.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—William Davidson, No. 64 Front street, is daily effecting sales of real estate, for coin, located in various parts of the city, and the amount for the past month foots up to a very considerable sum. The increasing inquiry at his office, for first class residence lots, by parties desiring to improve them, gives an earnest of the confidence entertained in the upward tendency of real estate in this city. This enterprising and go-ahead real estate dealer is sending broadcast at the East and in Europe concise and truthful statements regarding the soil, climate and productions of Oregon, and by correspondence with men of wealth and influence at the East, is inducing capital here to be invested in real estate in Portland, as well as farms and uncultivated lands in Oregon.

Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy is a sure cure

Impressions of Jerusalem.

[From the People's Magazine.]

We pitched our tent in an olive ground outside of the Jaffa gate, and took our first look at Jerusalem before sunset—an hour to be noted by all visitors to the holy city, for then the gates are shut and no one can come out or in till morning; and unless you are provided with a consul's order, you may be separated from your bed and baggage. So much has been written about Jerusalem that it is quite unnecessary to enter into details as to its wonders, but two features which we noticed may be worth recording. First—the city, for a city that has such a history, seems strangely destitute of antiquities. Saving the Temple area and the Holy Sepulchre, there is no relic of the past. As you lose yourself in the labyrinths of the city you may now and then come across a pillar built into a wall, or a capital used as a stop gap, but as a rule, which successive conquerors have left behind them are the mounds of rubbish beneath which all Jerusalem as it was in old times, are buried. Second—The large amount of vacant space within the walls. There is a pleasant walk round the top of the walls of some parts of the city. As you look down hence you cannot see the narrow, deep cut streets, but you come on the fields of corn and open weed-grown spaces. And this same superfluity of ground is noticeable in the Temple area. In wandering about the city—and in a city so wanting in landmarks, wandering is an apt word, for you must lose your way—again and again you come suddenly upon an archway which gives a view of the open space beyond, on which you can see trees. But as you try to explore, a dark figure comes out from the shade of the archway and warns you back with the word "Haram" (sacred inclosure). When provided with the Consul's order, you enter this Harem, you are surprised to find so little space covered with buildings—how much ground is left unoccupied. There are two large mosques and some smaller buildings; the greater part of the area is entirely waste, or is only saved from desolation by a tree planted here and there. Jerusalem is too small for its clothes—a true sign that the glory is departed from it.

Philosophy of Bathing.

The following is from Dr. Mayo G. Smith, on the subject, and is worthy of consideration:

There are in the human body 2,700,000 glands and 7,000,000 pores, and but one per cent. of all perspirable matter consists of solid substances. The change in muscles, tissues and bones, occurs in from one to three years, and in the entire body in from six to seven years. If this old matter be retained, it causes disease—it is a real virus.

Some diseases are relieved almost instantly by opening the pores. Diarrhoea is frequently cured; matter from the mucous membrane is expelled through the skin; tobacco, opium and mercury have been thus exuded. Whatever through the skin the body can expel, it can absorb. Hold the end of your fingers in spirits of turpentine—it is absorbed; goes through the system, and may be detected by its odor. Constant handling of arsenic has produced death by absorption.

A doctor relates an account of a gentleman in Barbadoes, who was in the habit of daily intoxication, and had constructed a tub, with a pillow to accommodate his head, and when in this state was placed therein, and the tub was filled with cold water, in which he reposed for two or three hours, and would then arise refreshed and invigorated. When his wife or family required him, they would wake him up by taking out the plug, and allow the water to escape, when he would pleasantly complain of the "loss of his bed-clothes."

Dr. Brock, a student of Sir Ashley Cooper, once poisoned a dog, which immediately plunged into a neighboring river, and remained for some time with his body entirely submerged, after which he left his watery hospital and ran home cured. Dogs have been repeatedly cured of hydrophobia by holding them in water.

Thirst has often been relieved by immersion even in salt water, the salt probably being excluded during the process of transition.

At Charleston, during the epidemic, among several northern mechanics who had gone thither, but one escaped the prevailing fever, and he alone bathed frequently, and never slept at night in any of the clothes worn by day.

DOUBTFUL PATERNITY.—Under this caption the Eugene Guard (Dem.) has the following paragraph:

We have been indefatigable in our researches to ascertain who is the father of the "New Departure." It was generally supposed that Vallandigham was, but, upon reading further, we see that the parent was the "Conservative element" of Virginia. We then made sure we had it, but before another issue, we see that Dana, of the New York Sun, claimed the bantling as the offspring of his brain, but now Horace Greeley acknowledges it as the result of his farming. We are afraid that, like the "come-by-chance" in Illinois, it will have so many fathers that it will have to be declared a bastard.

Midsummer Maladies.

The hot solar rays that ripen the harvests generate many distressing diseases. If the liver be at all predisposed to irregularities, this is the season in which bilious attacks may be anticipated. A weak stomach, too, is weakest in the summer months, and the loss of vitality through the pores by excessive perspiration is so great, that a wholesome tonic, combining also the properties of a diffusive stimulant, is in many cases necessary to health, and under no circumstances should be dispensed with by the sickly and debilitated. Of all the preparations intended thus to refresh, sustain and fortify the human frame there is none that will compare with Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters. They have been weighed in the balance of experience and not found wanting; having been recommended from the first as a great medicinal specific, not as a beverage, and in spite of interested opposition from innumerable quarters, stand, after a twenty years trial, at the head of all proprietary medicines intended for the prevention and cure of all ordinary complaints of the stomach, the liver, the bowels, and the nerves. In the unhealthy districts bordering the great rivers of the South and West, Hostetter's Bitters may be classed as the standard one for every species of intermittent or remittent fever. The people who inhabit those districts, place the most implicit confidence in the preparation—a confidence that is increased every year by the results of its operation.

As bitters, so called, of the most pernicious character, are springing up like fungi on every side, the public is hereby forewarned against the dram-shop frauds. Ask for Hostetter's Bitters, see that the label, etc., are correct, and remember that the genuine article is never sold in bulk, but in bottles only.

As most of the able and experienced corps of Teachers with valuable accessions, as well as the fine classes of pupils now pursuing their studies remove with them, the School remains essentially unchanged with greatly increased facilities for physical comfort and intellectual culture without additional expense. Hill and Yancey.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THEIR PERSONAL DIFFICULTY IN A SECRET SESSION OF THE REBEL SENATE.

[From the Columbia (Tenn.) Herald, June 16.]

Among the many events of personal interest that transpired in the South during the late war, but few are of more dramatic character, or aroused a deeper interest among our people, than the unfortunate personal difficulty which took place in the Confederate States Senate at Richmond, during its secret session, between William L. Yancey, of Alabama, and Mr. Ben. H. Hill, of Georgia. Several different and conflicting versions of this affair, have been given through the Southern press, but none has yet been published that accords with a statement we recently derived from a gentleman who was at the time a Senator, and an eye-witness to all that transpired on the occasion.

The difficulty had its origin in the heated political contests so common in this country, prior to the breaking out of the war. It was when Yancey, with his dazzling eloquence was "firing the Southern heart," that a barbecue, attended by thousands, was given in one of the southern counties of Georgia. It was here that Hill and Yancey met, the one, the bold and eloquent defender of the Union, and the other, the boasted champion of secession; and during the debate which ensued, words were uttered that caused an estrangement that was never afterward reconciled.

The two had met again in the Confederate Senate, both doubtless smarting under the recollection of past conflicts and entertaining no kindly feeling for each other. It was when the cause of the South was drooping and every patriot heart was heavy with despondency and gloom, that Mr. Yancey, rising in his place in the Senate, declared that war could no longer be carried on with any hope of success unless many of the constitutional restraints and embarrassments were thrown aside, and boldly advocated a radical change in the Government to meet the demands of the public and the exigencies of the hour.

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Yancey's remarks Mr. Hill promptly arose to reply. The [illegible] of most intense excitement. He deprecated the opinion advocated by Mr. Yancey, and proceeded with great severity to review his past political career, running back to the beginning of the times when our sectional [illegible] were first being agitated. He [illegible] satisfied with having [illegible] Mr. Hill concluded, the excitement [illegible] white heat, was increased beyond anything ever before witnessed during those troublesome times. Mr. Yancey arose, and in a calm, dignified and self-possessed manner, peculiarly his own, commenced his reply. He described Mr. Hill as repeating slanders that had been uttered against him for the past twenty years, and that all which Mr. Hill had uttered had been said innumerable times before by every third-rate politician in the country; and continued by saying "Nature had designed the Senator from Georgia as a gladiator; that he had been cast in a certain die, and it was vain to attempt to enlarge his dimensions."

Filled with rage, Mr. Hill mounted to his [illegible] heavy glass ink-stand, hurled it with all his might and power at the head of Mr. Yancey, which, grazing his forehead, [illegible] to the skull, and passed on its furious [illegible], crushing a heavy window-facing beyond. Without turning his head, Mr. Yancey, who was at the time addressing the Speaker, continuing his speech, deliberately remarked, "It is always the prerogative of cowards to strike from the rear." Enraged still more at this remark, Mr. Hill, gathering [illegible] rushed upon his antagonist, who, regardless of the attack, was continuing his remarks as calmly as if nothing had happened, [illegible] the difficulty was ended. Mr. Yancey's wound bled most profusely, and a scene of the utmost confusion prevailed.

It has several times been stated since Mr. Yancey's death, that it resulted from injuries received in this rencontre, but such is not the case, as he died from a disease that could in no way have been superinduced by this blow.

RELICS OF THE REBELLION.—The Charleston [illegible] publishes a long account of the operations thus far pursued by the wrecking machine of the Monitor Wrecking Company in Charleston harbor, concerning the condition of the monitors sunk in the Charleston harbor, from which we quote:

"The Weehawken lies due east and west on a bottom of mud, and there is about eight feet of water over her at low tide. In this position she is a dangerous obstruction in the channel, and should be removed if possible. All of her machinery has been taken up, and likewise the [illegible] of her turret and deck. Her interior is filled with mud and garbage, among which human bones are here and there visible. Over two hundred tons of iron and various other metals have been raised from this ship thus far. The Housatonic lies in thirty-six feet of water, just over the bar, sixteen miles from the city. She rests on a hard shell bottom, and lies northwest and southeast upright on her keel. The water out here is beautifully blue and clear, and divers prosecute their work with much less difficulty than at the Weehawken. Her decks, mast and rigging have all been eaten away by the worms and little less is now left of her but the huge black hull. Her propeller, shaft, chains and anchors, and a large portion of her machinery have been hoisted from her by the machine, and also two of the guns composing her armament. The rest of them were taken up by the Government several years ago. The Government has a buoy planted about three hundred yards east-southeast of this wreck, which enables the wreckers to guess pretty closely as to her whereabouts. To render the matter certain, however, Captain Semmes, when he leaves her to come up to the city, marks her position with a buoy fastened to the center of her hull. About twenty feet south of the wreck of the former ship lies the hull of her destroyer, the confederate torpedo boat. She has been visited by the Captain who reports her to be lying bottom upward and seemingly in good preservation. There are no holes in her hull, and the wings of her diminutive propeller, now uppermost, seem to be in good running order; she did her work effectually. In the hull on the port quarter of the huge ship is a jagged hole, large enough to drive a carriage and pair through. The heavy oaken ribs and thick planks are blown in with tremendous power, and the Housatonic must have gone down with but little preparation. Her diminutive but dangerous foe met with a similar fate, and the two rest in silence side by side at the bottom of the sea."

Relics of the Stone Age.

There are but few of the valleys in Arizona in which may not be met with the remains of ancient art, which furnish abundant evidence that the country was once inhabited by a people who had attained a high standard of civilization. Among the most remarkable of these relics, says the Arizona Miner of June 10, are those recently exhumed from a monument in the valley of Salt river, on the land owned by Mr. McKinnie. This gentleman has, for some time past, employed his leisure hours at excavating among the ruins which constitute the principal mound on his premises. At two points, after having removed the debris which covers the ruins to a depth of about two feet, he discovered a number of apartments, varying in dimensions from nine to eleven feet square, regularly built, and still containing the cement with which the wall are [illegible] within. Besides various kinds of agricultural implements made from fragments of slate rock, he has obtained several stone hatchets and various kinds of ornaments made from different kinds of colored stones, shells and the bones and teeth of animals. It is quite probable that further research will lead to discoveries of much greater importance—as the work has thus far been confined to the extreme sides or edges of the mounds, and valuables would be deposited at or near the center. Mr. McKinnie intends sending a few of his most remarkable specimens to the Smithsonian Institute.

The Orange Parade.

The following letter from John J. Bond, Grand Master of the Orange Institution of the United States, appeared in some of the New York papers on the 3d inst.:

As the 12th July approaches, it is desirable to ascertain whether the members of the Loyal Orange Institution, who parade upon that day, shall be protected in their rights as citizens, or whether they shall be murdered for being Protestant citizens who celebrate the anniversary of freedom from priestcraft and the tyranny of King James II? Superintendent Kelso has graciously promised to maintain order and peace upon the above day, and the fraternity rely upon this promise with every confidence possible, and are persuaded that the Superintendent shall protect them. However, satisfactory as all this is, ought there not be some positive assurance that the Police themselves shall not be injured while protecting the Orangemen? Already there are threats of vengeance issued by the parties who deny the freedom of the land to every party but themselves, and threatening letters are being received by the Orangemen with hideous headings of coffins, skulls, pistols and death. They are informed that they, the Orangemen, have been tried before the Ribbon tribunal and found guilty, crime not stated, and they are sentenced to death, and that very good advice is given them in the shape of preparation for death. These letters are written by some good penmen and betray a fearful state of society in New York in this year of grace, when Liberty has even taken her seat in "Rome of the Tyrants." Those letters are written in fearful language, and betray most wicked minds and intentions. We therefore appeal to the community at large, and we especially appeal to Protestants, to aid us in maintaining the Protestant freedom our fathers bequeathed us in days gone by—shall we be permitted to enjoy the freedom of the land, or shall we be permitted to be martyred for a cause which was achieved centuries ago? and if we cannot enjoy that achievement then Protestantism has become a dead letter in America.

We appeal to the better portion of the community for advice and counsel. Shall we attempt parade, or shall we not? When, perhaps, a few of our men shall be murdered, we will be asked, "why we did not ask counsel or advice?" Now we ask it and hope to obtain it. Is America able to guarantee freedom in peace, law and order to her Potestant citizens and supporters, or is she not?

VALLANDIGHAM'S CLIENTS.—It will be remembered that Vallandigham was preparing to defend the McGehans (who were charged with murder) when he accidentally shot himself. The Chicago Post makes the following statement of the charge against McGehan:

On Christmas Eve, last year, Thomas Myers, a noted Republican, identified with the party movements of his State, and especially obnoxious to men like Peter Schwab, entered a saloon in Hamilton, Ohio, the locality made famous as the scene of Schwab's lottery box stuffing and his lottery swindle. He was followed by five Democratic roughs, among them two McGehans, Thomas and James. The indictment declares that these men entered the place with the intent of murdering Myers; that their plan had been deliberately prepared, and that a number of leading Democrats in the State were cognizant of it. The Chief of the Fire Department of Hamilton was a witness to the scene enacted after the entrance of the roughs. Amid a confusion of voices, and the knocking about of tables and chairs, a shot was fired, Myers cried "murder," and before the chief had reached the street, five successive shots followed. Myers was the only man injured, and he was carried home dead.

The political bitterness produced by the crime was intense, and it was evident from the outset that no effort would be spared to secure the assassin's acquittal. Indictments were found against each of the five roughs, and their successive trials are now in order. The jury tried Thomas McGehan, and could not agree. It was composed of seven Democrats and five Republicans, and notwithstanding the damning character of the evidence, five of the seven Democrats were in favor of unconditional acquittal!
